

21 July 1964

Colonel White:

1. Recommend you approve the attached request. I do not believe the concurrence of the AHB/P is required here.

2. The regulations are not specific in requiring that the six months time limit on shipments of household effects also be applied to instances such as the attached where those effects which were stored are being added to. However, the Office of Logistics takes the position that the addition of goods to storage involves additional local transportation, packing and handling charges which were not anticipated in, or authorized by, the original order. That Office believes that these additional costs should be controlled by the same time limits governing actual shipments.

3. Please note that, even with the additional items being stored, Mr. [REDACTED] total effects stored and shipped would remain well within the 10,000 pound limitation for employees of his grade.
